A photograph of a modern interior space. The foreground shows a hallway with orange walls and a dark grid pattern. The floor is made of light-colored wood. In the background, a bright room with a large window is visible. A white modern chair is positioned near the window, and a ceiling fan is hanging from the ceiling. The text "Allur Adol" is overlaid in a large, white, serif font across the center of the image.

Creating more space is the dream of almost every homeowner. Depending on budget, lot configurations, and zoning restrictions, options are myriad. Take an existing floor plan and expand it to suit the needs of a growing family, or indulge in the luxury of creating an entirely new space. Be it that dream master bedroom, a more expansive living room or an entire new second floor, an addition allows the homeowner to stay in his beloved home while still reaping the benefits of an instant 'wow' factor.

Studio Dumitru

Reinterpretation was the philosophy behind this renovation. Working primarily with local materials, architect George Dumitru added a modern, contemporary flair to what was formerly a bland box. Dumitru selected a local cedar, cut in a sheet laden fashion as opposed to traditional clapboard siding. A butterfly roof line adds contemporary interest to the top profile, and the abundant use of glass allows the outside to come in.

"We wanted a definitively modern look. The house allows the occupant to feel as if they are living today and looking forward to the future, and not to the past," says Dumitru.
